13th November 2020 Newsletter

When the prophet Jeremiah was speaking to Israel over 2500 years ago he was challenging them to think seriously about their relationship to and with God. Here is how he speaks for God:

“O Israel, my faithless people, come home to me again, for I am merciful. I will not be angry with you forever. Only acknowledge your guilt. Admit that you rebelled against the Lord your God and committed adultery by worshipping idols. Confess that you refused to follow me. Return home.”

What is that all about? It is seeing reality from God's perspective and not our own. You see, it is in the nature of people to “drift” – people do that in their marriage where their commitment to one another gets diluted by other “necessities” and “priorities”. People do this in all walks of life, where their life vision gets lost in the priorities we set for ourselves – money, social standing, material things, houses, cars – the list goes on.

Israel turned away from God to worship the “gods” of those around – which inevitably involved both the worship of money and sex. God calls them to return home. To return to a way of being and living that has different priorities. To challenge our moral thinking and not be subsumed by the moral relativism of our own culture. He calls us to be serious about our discipleship and by what it means to be a follower of Jesus.

Here is the remedy he calls for us to adopt. First of all, “come home to me” – are we like the wayward son in the story Jesus told that has become lost and needs to return home? Be honest about where you are with God! This is hard stuff that requires honest thinking and response.

What next does God ask of us?

Acknowledge your guilt. But there is a backdrop to this – He tells us that He is merciful, even in the face of our guilt – our wrong behaviour, our wrong thinking and emotions and priorities.

Acknowledge them – get them out into the open before God.

The next thing God wants from us is to admit our sins. Have you ever stood frustrated with one of your children and they refuse to admit what you know they have done? That is so often the point at which we can go no further. Admitting our sins is cathartic if we know we are speaking to One who loves us, wants to forgive us and desires to restore us.

Confess. Someone said that confession is good for the soul. How right they were. It gets rid of the rubbish from our lives and is the beginning point of letting in the life of God.

Finally, God invites us to return to Him and Follow Him. Put into the New Testament context one might put it like this:

“My Cross is sufficient for your forgiveness. My Spirit for your repentance.”

In all seriousness we need to be real about where we are with God and realise that a merciful and loving Father is waiting for our return to Him and will always restore and forgive.
